1. Undergraduate degree in Hispanic Studies

The degree in Hispanic Studies began in 2011-12 as an official degree program. The objectives of the degree are to impart classes on the language and cultures of the Spanish-speaking populations of the world.

The degree in Hispanic Studies is particularly noteworthy in that it goes beyond the traditional philologic perspective by offering subjects designed to explore the complexities and varieties of the Spanish language and its cultures. Therefore students will receive a global perspective of the Hispanic world through Language, History, Human Geography, Literature, and Art. An additional and novel characteristic of the program is the variety of nationalities of the enrolled students creating an international forum in the classroom.
